JOURNAL OF BOTANY, BRITISH AND FOREIGN, 1863, VOL. 43 (CLASSIC REPRINT)DOWNLOAD

Forgotten Books. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 400 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.8in. Excerpt from Journal of Botany, British and Foreign, 1863, Vol. 43. Penicillus is one of the genera of calcified alg which were formerly regarded as zoophytes under the name of Corallina. It received the name Penicillus from Lamarck in 1813. Though dubbed Nesa by Lamouroux in the preceding year, it had no right to that name; for Nesa was already, and still is, in use for a genus of Lythrae. Decaisne in 1842 made the first satisfactory attempt to put the genus into systematic order, but retained in it the two species which Kützing in 1843 separated off under the name Rhizocephalus. The West Indian region is the headquarters for most of the species, and parts of it have recently been carefully explored by Mr. Marshall A. Howe, who has published a short report (in Journ. New York Bot. Garden, v. 1904, pp. 164-166) of his visit to the South of Florida and the Bahamas, in which he says that Penicillus and Rhizocephalus are especially well represented in the Bahama Islands. He has been so kind as to supply us with a set of specimens gathered by him. These comprised four forms of Penicillus - viz. the well-known P. capitatus and P. dumetosus, with a new species and a new variety. These latter he allows us to describe, as we are working at a revision of the genus. The diagnosis of the new species is as follows: -P. pyriformis, sp. n. (fig. 1). Stipite brevi (10-30 mm.), crasso (6-7 mm.), parum compresso, in capitulum vix penetrante, superficie inaequali; capitulo pyriformi, 5-7 cm. longo, 3-4. 5 cm. lato, denso, post exsiccationem glaucoviridi; filamentis capituli calco indutis, ascendentibus, congestis, intertextis, 150-200 crassis. Hab....
